LIFE AND ART OF RICHARD MANSFIELD

With Selections from His Letters

By WILLIAM WINTER

Note that this is no ordinary biography, but one of the most notable examples of fearless creative art this country has produced.

It is a work of breadth and form, of amazing insight, of searching analysis, a life portrait, painted, like the portrait of Cromwell, "wart and all."

The object of the book was declared by its author to be "to make an authentic record of the Life, a just estimate of the achievement, a veritable picture of the Man." This he has accomplished.

The first deals with the Life; the second with the Art. Both are of the greatest possible interest.

With 72 illustrations. 8vo. Two Vols. Boxed, $6.00 net. By mail, $6.40

WHEN MOTHER LETS US SEW

INSTANT TRIUMPH

Hallie Erminie Rives's

The KINGDOM of SLENDER SWORDS

By the Author of

"Satan Sanderson," "Hearts Courageous"

"This new novel by Hallie Erminie Rives is by far the strongest story she has written and one is fairly safe in predicting for it more widespread popularity than was attained by either 'Satan Sanderson' or 'Hearts Courageous' by which she is best known.

"Her long residence in Japan has enabled her to write of the land of cherry blossoms with that thorough understanding of the life and ideals of its people only possible through a sympathetic study extending over several years."

An Absorbing New Novel

by Helen R. Martin

Author of

"Tillie: a Mennonite Maid"

THE CROSSWAYS

"Mrs. Martin has an unfailing gift of genuine spontaneous humor and the ability to handle dialect artistically without becoming unintelligible."
—Philadelphia Record.

"It is the vividness and naturalness of her character drawing and the subtle perception of humor as well as pathos that give Mrs. Martin's work its notable distinction."—Brooklyn Eagle.

A Pennsylvania Dutch story in the line of Mrs. Martin's early great success, "Tillie"

Camera Adventures in the African Wilds

By A. RADCLYFFE DUGMORE, F.R.G.S.

Mr. Dugmore has here brought the heart of African wild life into the full view of the world at large. The story of his adventures, and, most of all, his truly marvellous pictures of animals, taken by surprise at close quarters, make this book unique, and place Mr. Dugmore as the foremost Nature photographer alive. 140 magnificent photographs by the author. Net, $6.00 (postage 35c.).

THREE GIRLS WHO

In each of the following fine novels you will find Lesley Dearmer, Jean Morley and Elnora Comstock—each ambition to live for what is best in life; and each succeeds in having accomplished much, she has a right to demand much.

LESLEY DEARMER

It is by her fearless struggle against the isolation of comparative poverty, that Lesley Dearmer achieves success and gives such a true atmosphere to this remarkable story. A long time elapses before the pampered Marquis, who had previously shunned her because she was poor, proves himself fit to marry such a genuine type of the best American girl.

JEAN MORLEY

Here again it is through Jean Morley, a girl "whose hands had known labor" that, Wayne Craighill "the child of his city (Pittsburg), who expressed its genius, its confused aims, its weaknesses and its aspirations," comes to see beyond his self-imposed limitations, to the extreme possibilities of his nature.

ELNORA COMSTOCK

The brave fight that Elnora Comstock makes, in order to pay for her education, is as inspiring to read about as is her whole-hearted devotion to Nature. The study and collection of moths by which she eventually achieves her object is one of the features which make "A Girl of the Limberlost," such an unusual and absorbing tale.

Do You Sell Books?

DO you not just let books sell themselves—if they can. Or, in other words, do you stand aside with a sometimes unconscious, sometimes studied air of detachment, and allow the author or publisher—or the pretty girl on the cover—to sell them for you ?

Even if there's no pretty girl on the cover, and author and publisher prove poor salesmen, you still feel no call to become actually and aggressively book*sellers* instead of men with books to sell.

This being so, you very naturally welcome those books which can always be counted on to "sell themselves."

Among these, you have learned to look for the novels of LOUIS TRACY much as the farmer looks for rain after dry weather.

"The Wings of the Morning," "The Pillar of Light," "The Captain of the Kansas," "The Message," "The Stowaway,"—these books stand out in your mind. They are among the high lights of recent book-selling.

Now there is another one—now on sale. A SON OF THE IMMORTALS, it is called, and in it Tracy has by no means lost his stride.

A SON OF THE IMMORTALS (you're soon going to hear that title on many lips) has to do with a young American who goes for a short excursion into the ranks of royalty, so to speak ; who is presented with a ticket to the throne of Kosnovia—and return—good for only thirty days.

But it's a busy thirty days !

Any further suggestions would be an insult to your intelligence.

THE

BY LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE

AUTHOR OF

THE BRASS BOWL, Etc.

Illustrated. $1.50

Copyrighted by Dodd, Mead & Company

A YOUNG MAN is out of work because he has never learned how to work. He was once rich, and is now poor. In despair he goes to a clever friend, who says:

"I will lend you five hundred dollars, and give you a plan by which you will become worth a million at least."

The young man follows the plan faithfully, and succeeds. It is a plan which, if followed faithfully, cannot fail.

But when success is within his grasp he is dissatisfied, and lets it go, whereby he succeeds in a far finer way, and wins a girl who is, intrinsically at least, worth a million dollars.

THE FORTUNE HUNTER has set thousands to laughing, and to thinking, too. One of the most prominent ministers in the country has written a sermon about it; one of the best known editors in the country has written an editorial about it.

We recommend it to you.

NOTES IN SEASON.

THE BOOK SUPPLY COMPANY, of Chicago, announce the continued satisfactory sales of "The Calling of Dan Matthews," by Harold Bell Wright, which indeed promises to equal the success of "The Shepherd of the Hills."

BRENTANO'S publish the authorized translation of the text of Hoffmannsthal's dramatic poem, "Elektra," set to music by Richard Strauss, which is in the form of a poem by Arthur Symons, said to be of remarkable beauty.

THE American Branch of the Oxford University Press call special attention to the Schofield "Reference Bible," which they believe the last word in Bible editing. Compact introductions are given to every book and copious foot notes and cross references.

EDWARD J. CLODE have a new book by Louis Tracy, entitled "The Son of the Immortals," in which the young American hero goes for a short excursion to Kosnovia and enters the ranks of royalty, having a ticket for the throne and return, good for only thirty busy days.

THE CENTURY COMPANY publish this week "The Crossways," a new novel by Helen R. Martin, the author of "Tillie: a Mennonite Maid." The novel deals with a common marriage problem, of a man and woman of diverse types and interests, and deals with a strength and sincerity that will make it a book to be widely read and talked about.

ONE of the leading characters in "Theodora's Husband," published this week by John Lane Company, is a young French aeronaut. The building of an aeroplane by this young man plays an important part in the history of the married life of the beautiful Theodora, Lady Allingham and her husband, Sir George.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. will publish February 21 "More Stories of the Four Million," by O. Henry; "Camera Adventures in the African Wilds," by A. Radcliffe Dugmore; "From the Bottom Up," the life story of Alexander Irvine; "Idols," selected and annotated by Professor Charles Mills Gayley; and "Many Gods," a book of poems by Cale Young Rice.

HURST & Co. follow the prevailing trend, and are putting strength into airship books. They have a Boy Aviator series, in which the first two volumes are by Captain Wilbur Lawton. 'The Boy Aviators in Nicaragua, or, in League with the Insurgents" is now ready; "The Boy Aviators on Secret Service, or, Working with Wireless" will be published shortly, and four more titles will be ready this fall. Each book has four original drawings. Hurst & Co. have also a Popular Theatre edition of "St. Elmo," now playing in the chief cities of the United States.

HARPER & BROTHERS will have ready within the month "Mary Cary—Frequently Martha," by Kate Langley Bosher, a wholesome, laughing story of a child, the inmate of an orphan asylum; "In After Days," in which Howells, Higginson, John Bigelow, Henry James, Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, Mrs. Elizabeth Stuart Phelps and others give their ideas upon the future life; and "The Great English Short Story Writers," two new volumes in the Readers' Library. During March they will bring out "The Hermit of Capri," by John Steventon; "Beyond the Shadow," by Howard Pyle; "Harper's Handy Book for Girls;" "A Holiday with the Birds," by Jeannette Marks and Julia Moody; and "The Return of the Native" and "Jude the Obscure" in the new Thin Paper edition of Thomas Hardy.

The idea emphasized in this book is that in the ordinary processes of cooking the organic elements become inorganic and food values are destroyed. This dietetic idea is most important, and it is claimed by the author that when generally known and made practical it will restore the racial vigor as nothing else can, free woman from the slavery of the cook stove and become a large factor in the solution of the servant problem. The author gives food tables, recipes and menus which carry out her theories.

Crane, R. T. The utility of all kinds of higher schooling; an investigation. Chic., R. T. Crane, 1214 So. Canal St., 1909, [1910.] 331 p. O. cl., $1.

Mr. Crane has spent a good deal of time in investigating the utility of education higher than the public grammar schools and his conclusion is that it is all worse than useless, demoralizing morally and disqualifying a man for a business career. To those who hold the opposite opinion, the author's arguments will seem neither convincing nor weighty, but that there is ground for complaint and room for improvement in the curricula of our educational institutions most people will admit.

This book is not controversial nor it is written with the intent to make converts to any special sect. It recognizes the catholicity which should exist among all Christians, and bearing this in mind, with the purpose of helping honest doubters, of raising religious inquiry, and of showing the demand religion should make and does make upon every soul, it seeks to increase Christian church membership of whatever creed the individual may prefer. The author is Bishop of Fond du Lac.

The professor of Christian ethics in Union Theological Seminary, New York City, here considers the ethical attitude of Christianity toward social reform. He points out the necessity of individual responsibility being recognized and then the responsibility of groups. Churches should unite, not necessarily in matters of dogma, but most surely for the accomplishment of social regeneration. Christian responsibility for political, industrial and social conditions in all parts of the world, irrespective of race, or color, or creed, is the keynote of the book Bibliography (16 p.).

The author has written a number of popular books along philosophical lines as well as the "Mexican trails" and "In the open." He speaks of society as haunted by the ghosts of those dead to intellectual and to spiritual life; dead to nature, alive only to one thing—money-making. Mr. Kirkham deems the real substances of life to be sincerity in society; peace in isolation; thought in the perusal of books, and to journey out of ourselves. These are the resources which complete life.

Garret Augustus Hobart was born in 1844 at Long Branch, Monmouth County, N. J. Of English, Dutch and French stock, the characteristics of each nation blended into making him the good student he was at Rutgers College, and the thorough lawyer he developed into at Paterson, N. J. The unfolding of his professional life into more important fields is traced, his life as Vice-President, and many of his political policies with quotations from letters are given.

Marshall, H. E. The child's English literature; il. with 20 drawings in colour by J: R. Sketon. N. Y., Frederick A. Stokes Co., [1910.] 20+687 p. O. cl., *$2.50 net.

This is not a text-book, but is written to interest and entertain children. The early portions of English literature are treated at greater length than is usual, because the author believes that what was attractive to a youthful nation will be attractive to the youth of that nation. The subject matter of the writings rather than the biographies of the writers is what the book deals with, and it does not pretend to be exhaustive, what appeals to children governing the choice. "Books to read" at the end of chapters.

Mathews, Rob. Valentine. The lost legion. N. Y., Edwin C. Hill, 1 West 34th St., [1910.] c. 9+164 p. O. cl., $1.

The story of two sisters, one heartless and worldly, the other fine and noble. The former has married a New York physician who loses his sight. Margaret Gair, the other sister, leaves her school in Montana to go to her sister's help. She finds that her brother-in-law on hearing her voice mistakes her for his wife, and the story tells of how for his sake she impersonates her sister.

Companion volume to author's "British highways and byways from a motor car." This book takes the reader off the beaten track of the tourist and shows him the less frequented parts of rural England. The text comments on matters of historical and romantic interest, and gives much practical information for motorists and other travellers.

Neale, J: Mason, D.D. Letters of John Mason Neale; selected and ed. by his daughter. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1910. 17+379 p. por. O. cl., *$3 net.

John M. Neale was an extreme high churchman, and his letters are interesting in throwing light on the Cambridge attitude toward the Oxford Movement, where it made as much disturbance as at the sister university. Dr. Neale was inhibited by his bishop for fourteen years in consequence of his position in the matter. He founded the Sisterhood of St. Margaret, and wrote "An introduction to the history of the holy eastern church," "Mediæval preachers," "Hymns of the eastern church," "Mediæval hymns and sequences," etc., as well as making translations of hymns by Bernard of Cluny, "Jerusalem the golden" being the best known of these. The passion for speculation, or getting something for nothing, of acquiring wealth without work, has swayed a large part of humanity throughout the ages. Mr. Nevill has made an exhaustive study of gambling in all its forms, and has many anecdotes of famous gamesters, both men and women, to relate. The famous houses of play of England and the continent are described, while the illustrations, reproductions, often in color, of old prints and pictures give a good idea of eighteenth century manners. The author's conclusion is that regulation and not repression is the only method of mitigating the evils of speculation. Index.

Mr. Palmer spent the summer and autumn of 1908 making a journey of observation and study through Mexico, Guatemala, Salvador, Honduras, Nicaragua and Costa Rica, to gather material for a series of letters for the Chicago Tribune. The letters expanded and with new material added make up the present volume. First are four chapters on Mexico, dealing with her political and ethnological relations with Central America and her political relations with the United States. Central America is not merely a region for us to smile at and consider as the stage setting for opéra bouffe revolutions, but the scene of conditions worse than any in Russia or Turkey, which Mr. Palmer considers it the duty of the United States to investigate and correct. The history, population and resources are all discussed, while chapters on The real Monroe doctrine, Mr. Root's plan, and The future, contain valuable suggestions. Bibliography (2 p.). Index.

Two rival archæologists meet in the desert of the interior of Egypt. The older is absolutely unscrupulous and employs, with the help of another scientist, unseen powers to overthrow his young enemy, who has fallen in love with his daughter. The scene shifts down the Nile and thence to London, where the two allies use their power over a long dead Egyptian priest whose mummy they possess to compass the death of any one who opposes them. How the masterful hero wins his ladylove and the final reckoning for the arch-villain make a surprising and thrilling climax.

Mr. Sutherland, associate editor of The North American, of Philadelphia, was sent by his paper in 1902 to investigate and write up the Irish question. The letters he wrote at that time considered the problem of the land as he saw it and learned about it from the people. Again, in 1909, he went to Ireland on a tour of investigation, which resulted in a series of letters on the economic condition in which he showed how the land problem is being solved. These two series of letters, with a third section on the demand for home rule, make up the book. Index.

While not a novelization of Winchell Smith's successful comedy, now playing in New York, still the plot is largely like it and the illustrations are from the play. Nat Duncan, a college graduate, who has failed at everything, consents to carry out the scheme of his best friend, Harry Kellogg, who is sure he can start him on the road to success. The plan is to go to a small country town, pose as a model youth who neither smokes, drinks nor swears, and goes to church regularly. Kellogg assures Nat that by following out his programme he has only to choose the richest girl in town, marry her and be happy and prosperous all his days. The mingled success and failure of the plan make a most amusing story. By the author of "The brass bowl," "The pool of flame," etc.

On October 8, 1908, the Oxford Museum celebrated its 50th anniversary, and this book is written in memory of the event. The history is traced from the original gifts by Elias Ashmole in 1677 through the jubilee celebration. The building was erected under the direction of Acland and Ruskin, and the book contains many anecdotes of them as well as quaint stories of the men of earlier days who were interested in the sciences at Oxford. Weale, B. L. Putnam, [pseud. for Bertram Lenox Simpson.] The human cobweb; a romance of Peking. N. Y., Dodd, Mead & Co., 1910. c. 469 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

A novel of European life in Peking, the diplomats, travellers, adventurers, marooned in the midst of an ocean of Chinese. It tells the story of concessionaires, men seeking great concessions from the Chinese government, and as they scheme, struggle, cajole, bribe and bully mighty financial magnates in London and Brussels are quietly spinning webs which enmesh their faraway agents like helpless flies. The people and country of China are vividly drawn and the unfathomable Oriental life makes a fascinating background for the story. The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

FEBRUARY 19, 1910.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers and librarians depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalog," and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

PUBLISHING "SEASONS" RUN TO AN EXTREME.

THE Athenæum, in a recent issue, in pursuance of its new policy of devoting its leading article to general literary questions, makes some pertinent comments upon "The Publishing Season and the Booktrade." It professes to see among publishers a feverish competition in overproduction "which is exhausting themselves and impoverishing the writers they employ." It admits that in illustration, particularly color illustration, there has been immense improvement in the past few years; applauds the increase of out-door and popular nature books; but deprecates the continual and superficial "rehashing" of works of history and of those "short cuts to knowledge in the shape of thought and wisdom books—primers, books of extracts and anthologies," with which it claims the market is now flooded. Writers of history and memoirs, says the Athenæum, "aim more at style, which usually means affectation, than accuracy; they neglect original documents and pillage freely from existing authorities. This kind of popular book is too lightly undertaken, and generally secures praise which it does not deserve."

But if this criticism seems somewhat peevish, the Athenæum's main thesis offers opportunity for more serious thought. The enormous amount of second and third rate fiction which is appearing has been much discussed and the literary and economic shortsightedness of it "is beginning," it says, "to reach the intelligence of the average person. It may be well, however, to give the figures for the last two winter seasons. In 1907 'novels, tales, juvenile works, etc.,' reached in September and the two following months [this is the English production only] the figures 264, 374, and 249; in 1908, 265, 319, and 204. This year we have received on one day more than thirty books in juvenile literature from a single house. How is it possible to deal with such a flood as this? And, even if criticism is regarded as worthless, does this superfluity of seasonal publications do anything but distract the buying public?"

"Is anything really gained," it adds, "by this crowding of books into seasons? Would the public interest wane if the autumn and winter flood was reduced, and there was a chance all the year round—even during what we are accustomed to call our summer—to choose from a larger array of new books?"

Is it not true that the "Christmas trade," the "January stock taking," the "spring season," "the summer dullness" are shibboleths, which the bookseller and publisher alike have allowed gradually to dominate the trade to their own detriment? It has come to be a fact that 35 per cent. of the entire publishing output of the year appears in the six weeks immediately before Christmas, and another 30 per cent. in the six weeks about Easter time. Yet with nine-tenths of these books there is no special element of timeliness. For their intrinsic value they might just as well be published any time during the year. Yet, obeying the shibboleths mentioned above, they must come out "in season," with the result that the reviewer is swamped with good material which he cannot by any possibility adequately notice; the review magazines and departments are clogged with matter they cannot possibly use—material that at other times in the year they are crying for; the buying public is temporarily surfeited to the point of literary indigestion, and the dealer is forced in self defense to call a halt on publications of which at a more opportune time he would order freely.

Of course a certain routine in production is necessary, certain breathing spells in the work of the year are advisable, present methods of wholesale selling, unless they can be changed, require a certain seasonal order of production. But to carry this to the extreme it has at present reached; to concentrate the year's production into a certain two or three months will prove a suicidal policy.

In other lines of business the whole tendency is to extend rather than contract the selling period. The winter or summer hotel seeks to build up an all-year patronage. And this is true even of businesses which seem strictly seasonal in their scope. Why book publishing and book selling, whose products should be as staple—in varied classes to be sure—in July as in November, should allow their selling season to contract as it seems to be doing is a puzzle. It costs no more to publish twenty-five books in January, February, March and April, respectively, than one hundred in March; and the previous method is going to place the books before the public with an attractiveness and adequacy that the latter never can.

BIBLIOPHILE SOCIETY'S ANNUAL DINNER.

The Bibliophile Society held its annual dinner at the Hotel Astor, New York City, Tuesday evening, February 15. The speakers, among whom were Professor W. P. Trent, of Columbia, Adrian H. Joline, H. H. Harper and Judge Charles W. Dayton, had a number of bibliographic surprises for those present.

Mr. Harper, in announcing that the Society had a balance of $20,000 now available in its treasury for publication purposes, stated that it was planned to publish at an early date the newly discovered Charles Dickens love letters and personal memorabilia recently found in this city by a committee of the Society. The publication of these letters, with the two rare Shelley letters, for which the Society recently paid $2000 in London, will form a most interesting bibliographical contribution. Professor Trent deplored the non-existence in print of a complete edition of Coleridge.

"If Coleridge had been a thirteenth century monk who had written a lot of homilies," he said, "or an Elizabethan dramatist, his works would have been fully published many years ago and societies in his honor organized, but as he happened to be a great—one of the greatest—English authors of modern times, only abridged copies of his writings can be obtained."

He advocated the publication by the Society of complete editions of such authors as Lamb and Coleridge, whom he seemed to think the regular publishing trade had more or less unjustly ignored.

"To please just one customer will give you an opportunity to please his friends and acquaintances."

RAND, McNALLY & CO. SUED UNDER TEXT-BOOK LAW.

Rand, McNally & Co. and the Board of Education of Chicago are jointly defendants in a taxpayer's suit, instituted by one Paul E. Polzin, which seeks to restrain them from carrying out a contract for the supplying of a series of school geographies. The action is brought under the so-called Ettelson-Hope text-book law, which went into effect July 1 last, and which provides a limit of price which school boards shall pay for certain public school books.

The limit of price on the geographies in question was 75 and 35 cents. The Rand-McNally contract called for 95 and 45 cents.

The law in question was called unconstitutional by the Attorney-General of Illinois in an opinion rendered last spring, and has been generally ignored by book publishers and school boards alike. The ground for the Attorney-General's decision was the fact that the bill, in attempting to fix prices for specific books, necessarily left out a large number. This would have left certain purchasers entirely unprotected; and, on the other hand, would have allowed publishers to raise arbitrarily the prices of all school books not listed in the bill.

This bill requesting an injunction and the annulment of the contract in question is therefore in the nature of a test case.

STREET & SMITH PROTEST AGAINST WARD & GOW CHARGE.

Street & Smith have filed a complaint with the Public Service Commission of the 1st District, New York, against Ward & Gow, a news and advertising agency, seeking to compel them to expose for sale Ainslee's, Smith's, People's and the other Street & Smith magazines without gross payment therefor.

Ward & Gow hold the newsstand and advertising concession in the New York City subway and elevated stations. For this, presumably, they pay the Interborough Company well, and it has been their practice to charge the various magazines $15 a month each for placing them on sale on the subway and elevated stands. Instead of an out and out rental this charge has been under the guise of "advertising," a certain space being allotted each magazine on "L" newsstands for that purpose. In the subway advertising is forbidden.

Street & Smith state that since December, when they first refused to pay the $30 a month in question, their magazines have been taken off the subway and elevated stands and that the Interborough Company itself has offered them no redress.

C. W. MacQueston and A. S. Bailey, both formerly with Duffield & Company, have acquired a controlling interest in the publishing business of the Macaulay Company, of which they will at once assume active management as president and treasurer, respectively. The Macaulay Company will also move to a new address, 15 West 38th Street, New York.

NEW HOME FOR THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY.

THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY has bought the property in East Vermont Street, fronting University Park, Indianapolis. The purpose of the company is to erect on this ground a five-story building for its publishing business. Plans have already been drawn by Foltz & Parker, architects, and work upon the building will begin on March 1, to be ready for occupancy on July 1. The building will front fifty-three feet in Vermont Street and will be 195 feet deep. It will be of fireproof steel construction, with cement floors, the walls to be of colonial brick, trimmed with white marble. Buildings and plans were examined in New York, Boston and Philadelphia, with the view of obtaining an appropriate architectural effect that would accord with the landscape in University Park, and thus definitely avoid evidences of ordinary business architecture.

The basement of the new building will be arranged to carry the unbound sheets of the company's publications. Under the sidewalk will be constructed a plate vault the entire width of the building and the entire depth of the walk. In this vault will be kept the electrotype and stereotype plates from which books are printed. The first floor will concontain a salesroom for law and miscellaneous publications of books and the shipping room. The second floor will contain the counting room and general office of the business. The three upper floors will be devoted to the miscellaneous, editorial and art department, to the legal editorial department, and to the library for the use of the editors.

This removal will not in any manner involve either the retail business in Washington Street, which a year ago was sold to the W. K. Stewart Company, nor any change in the printing and binding of the company's books, which is done at the Hollenbeck Press, owned by the company, and located in Indianapolis.

The Bobbs-Merrill Company and its predecessors have been located in Washington Street continuously since 1838, the oldest house in the street. The removal of this business to the north side of University Square will mark the forced extension of the business of the city from the congested district. The property cost $45,000 cash, being at the rate of $850 a foot front, and when the building is completed an investment exceeding $100,000 will be represented. The price paid for this property is regarded by those acquainted with real estate values as exceedingly reasonable.

It is understood that the New York offices of the company, at 34 Union Square, East, will also be enlarged.

"IF a man can make a better book, preach a better sermon or make a better mousetrap than his neighbor, though he build his house in the woods the world will make a beaten track to his door."—EMERSON.

CHARLES A. BURKHARDT HAS A BIRTHDAY.

ST. VALENTINE and Charles A. Burkhardt, of E. P. Dutton & Co., celebrated their day together on the 15th, it being Mr. Burkhardt's birthday.

On the night of the 14th a few of the employees remained after the closing hour. A great electric lamp was placed in the centre of the top of his desk. Entwined about the shaft of it were green sprigs upon which were good-sized red hearts. To the right and left of the lamp were four casts of Cupids wearing the most doleful expression of meditation. Attached to the electric bulbs of the lamp were a great number of white streamers on which were fastened red hearts. In the centre of the desk was placed a birthday cake with sixteen burning candles stuck therein, each burning candle "representing" a year in Charlie's young life.

Nearly every one who knows Mr. B. sent greetings, and, strange as it may seem, many of them brewers. Nearly a sack full of mail was placed on the desk, which was taxed to its capacity. His chair was then decorated with sprays of green with hearts hanging upon them. All of the employees arrived early next morning and awaited near the door. A whistle blast announced his coming, and it would be putting it mildly to say he was completely overcome by the way he was congratulated.

THE PROFITS ON NOVELS IN ENGLAND.

SOME interesting figures, illustrating the effect of any departure from the conventional price of the English novel upon the profits both of publisher and author, are given in the interim report of a sub-committee of the Incorporated Society of Authors. This report is signed by Mrs. Belloc-Lowndes, Charles Garvice, E. W. Hornung, W. W. Jacobs and S. Squire Sprigge. The sub-committee was appointed "to consider the question of the price at which new novels should be issued," and its first step was to invite the opinion of seventy-eight novelists. The result was that thirty authors declared themselves uncompromisingly opposed to any systematic reduction of the usual publishing price of the new novel—six shillings—believing that the reduction would bring to them, having regard to the reduced royalties offered, no return which would compensate them for the loss which they would sustain by not receiving the larger royalty upon the larger prices. Seven took the opposite view. The deduction drawn by the sub-committee from this evidence and that of other authors who took up a non-committal attitude is that it contains no definite arguments in favor of the lowering of the original price of the new novel from 6s. either for the benefit of the author, the publisher, the bookseller, or the public. Information was sought also from publishers, who were asked whether the circulation obtained for novels published originally at a lower price than 6s. would, in their opinion, result in a proportionate increase if the price were lowered. The basis taken was a 6s. novel of the ordinary length of about 80,000 to 100,000 words, with a circulation of at least 3000 copies; and the publishers were asked further if it would be practicable to pay an author royalties on a 2s., a 2s. 6d. or a 3s. net book at so high a rate as on a 6s. book; and if it would be practicable to consider raising the original price in certain cases. The consensus of opinion from the publishers was found to be as follows: That from 9000 copies at least 12,000 (the highest figure mentioned) must be sold at 2s. net. That 8000 must be sold at 2s. 6d. net, and that 6000 copies must be sold at 3s. net before the author would receive the amount equivalent to that which he usually receives on 3000 copies at 6s., i.e., 4s. 6d. net. That, leaving exceptional cases out of count, it does not appear probable that the author's circulation would be proportionately enhanced by a reduction in the price of the original issue. On this point figures relating to particular cases have been submitted in proof of the opinion that the same proportionate royalty could not be offered upon the lower prices. On this point the publishers are all very clear. In conclusion, the sub-committee urges that the novelist should maintain the price of the original production of his work at six shillings, declaring that there is no evidence that a low price means a larger circulation.—British and Colonial Printer and Stationer.

TRADE ASSOCIATIONS.

THE BOOKSELLERS' LEAGUE.

THE BOOKSELLERS' LEAGUE enjoyed an excellent February dinner at the Aldine Association Wednesday night. The speakers whom the Entertainment Committee had provided were equally appreciated: Edgar Allen Forbes, associated with The World's Work, gave with a good deal of dry humor some reminiscences of travel in Sierra Leone and Liberia, illustrated with a large number of stereopticon views; Joseph C. Lincoln, author of "Cap'n Eri," brought with him a characteristic collection of stories varied by readings from some of his own verse; and T. Truxton Hare, author of "A Junior in the Line" and other college athletic stories, had some interesting things to say about football from a writer's point of view.

OBITUARIES.

MARY OLIVIA NUTTING, librarian emeritus of Mt. Holyoke College, died on Sunday at South Hadley, Mass, aged 80 years. She was born July 1, 1831, and after being teacher at Mt. Holyoke was librarian from 1870 to 1901. She also wrote under the pen-name of Mary Barrett. Among her writings are "Our Summer at Hillside Farm," "Story of William the Silent and the Netherland War," "The Days of Prince Maurice," and "Steps in the Upward Way."

WILHELM WOHLFARTH, an old German second-hand bookseller, who kept a little shop at 388 Third Avenue, died suddenly on Lincoln's birthday in the shop where for many years he had lived as a recluse and bookworm. The man died in his arm chair in the rear of the store, a copy of the rare first edition of John Hay's "Life of Abraham Lincoln" lying open in his lap being found soon after by a chance customer who had wandered in. An investigation of his effects showed that, in spite of his hermit method of life, he was very well to do.

REV. DR. WILLIAM EVERETT, the well-known scholar and noted Congressman of fifteen years back, died at his home at Quincy, Mass., after a long illness. Dr. Everett was the son of Edward Everett, the statesman, and was born in Watertown, Mass., in 1839. As a boy he had the benefit of his father's instruction and personal companionship. He entered Harvard in 1855, and always held high rank as a student. After graduating in 1859 he studied at Trinity, Cambridge University, England, where the Prince of Wales at the time, now King Edward VII., was his classmate. On his return to America he studied law, but never practiced. He taught Latin at Harvard, and later succeeded the late Dr. Dimmock as master of Adams Academy. When this institution ceased to exist it was a great blow to Dr. Everett. He distinguished himself in Congress by his inherited gift of oratory. He was a licensed Unitarian clergyman and frequently preached, but never held a charge. He published many volumes of essays and sermons, and "Changing Base" and "Double Play," two books for boys.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

EDWARD J. GOLDBERY, for some years with Laird and Lee, Chicago, has been re-engaged to represent them.

FREDERICK A. STOKES COMPANY announce this week Harold Bindloss' newest novel, "Thurston of Orchard Valley."

M. CURLANDER, Baltimore, Md., has ready "The Theory and Practice of Estate Accounting." by Frederick H. Baugh, an expert accountant, and William C. Schmeisser, of the Baltimore bar.

THERE is unusual interest in the report of the forthcoming production of a posthumous play by George Meredith, left uncompleted at his death, but finished, it is said, by a well-known English dramatist.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & COMPANY have now allowed those interested to know that the building site for their new manufacturing plant, described on page 141 of our issue for January 22, is situated at Garden City, Long Island.

ANOTHER English cheap book publishing venture is being inaugurated by the Newnes people, a series of sixpenny novels. The novels of Effie Rowlands, an American, but English in plot and scene, are taken as a starter.

R. G. BADGER, Boston, Mass., has for sale cheap 1000 half-tone blocks used in illustrating Christian Art and 250 half-tone blocks used in illustrating "The Archives of Physiological Therapy." Sample prints sent on request.

IT is perhaps not known that Charles B. Reed, author of "The First Great Canadian," is a brother of Myrtle Reed, the novelist. The book is a life of Pierre Le Moyne, Sieur d'Iberville. Mr. Reed is a physician, but has wide and lively interest in matters historical.

THE METROPOLITAN PRESS have two novels on their spring list: "The Mystery of Evangeline Fairfax," by Earle Kunst, illustrated by H. Richard Boehm, described as a story of love, adventure and mystery, impressive in its realism; and "A Victorious Life," by Leonora B. Halsted," the love story of a charming woman told with sweetness and tenderness.

JOHN ST. LOE STRACHEY writes us regarding a note in the WEEKLY of January 22 that he, and not his brother, Sir Edward Strachey, is owner and editor of The Spectator. The slip was ours. He adds that neither himself nor his brother is the author of the anonymous "German Ambitions," as has been surmised.

GRIFFITH & ROWLAND PRESS call attention to the following recently issued books: Dr. Alvah H. Hobart's "Tillage of the Heart;" Shailer Mathews's "The Social Gospel;" William H. Ridgway's "Religion;" Dr. Samuel Zane Batten's "The Christian State;" Dr. Len G. Broughton's "The Plain Man and His Bible;" and Dr. Philip L. Jones's "A Restatement of Baptist Principles."

THE BAKER & TAYLOR COMPANY, who have published all of Mrs. Barnes-Grundy's books in this country, announce that her new book which is being published in England under the title "Two Men and Gwenda," will be issued here under the title of "Gwenda" simply.

B. Herder, St. Louis, Mo., announces, as among the most important of his new publications, a "Life of Blessed Julie Billiart," foundress of the Institute of Sisters of Notre Dame; and a "History of the Catholic Church in the 19th Century," in two volumes, by the Rev. James MacCaffrey. Also a number of new pamphlet manuals of offices and litanies in both English and German.

B. W. Dodge & Company will publish on March 21 "Samuel the Seeker," a new novel by Upton Sinclair, who in this book has abandoned the field of muck-raking, although the book still embodies his theories of the relation between capital and labor; and "Bible Rimes for the Not Too Young," by Clare Beecher Kummer, with illustrations by Oliver Herford, neither a juvenile or religious, but good wit for adults.

Under the title "An Old American Publisher" Frederick Fairchild Sherman publishes privately a pamphlet appreciation of an ancestor publisher, Abraham Shearman, Jr., 1777-1847, of New Bedford, Mass., who published a score or more of meritorious books and papers, mostly religious, between 1799 and 1829. The pamphlet is itself a beautiful piece of printing; there are several illustrations, and the edition is limited to twenty-five copies.

The Frederick A. Stokes Company should have published their "Child's English Literature" before Christmas, for as a solution of the gift problem it is well-nigh ideal. H. E. Marshall, the editor, has selected, with fascinating biographical sketches and running comment, the cream, from a juvenile standpoint, of this the world's greatest literature. The book forms a bulky storehouse for much reading, and is well printed and bound, with splendid color illustrations by John R. Skelton.

E. P. Dutton & Co. announce a new Bible dictionary for the general reader, a single-volume cyclopædia, "The Temple Bible-Dictionary." A remarkable quantity of information is packed away between its covers. Both its editors—the Rev. W. Ewing and Dr. Thomson—are well-known orientalists, and the list of eminent scholars by whom they have been assisted is a long one. Five hundred illustrations, many from new photographs, add enormously to the interest of the text.

The Reilly & Britton Co. have arranged with Colonel W. C. Hunter, author of "Dollars and Sense," for the publication of a new book, entitled "Brass Tacks," and the publication day has been set for June 1. Thousands of little children will learn with regret that L. Frank Baum has also delivered into the hands of the same publishers the last of his famous "Oz" stories. This book will be entitled "The Emerald City of Oz," and it is to be published September 1. It will be the handsomest Baum book yet published.

In "The Makers of Hebrew Books in Italy" the bibliophile will be introduced to a collection of hitherto little known incunabula. The author, David Werner Amram, has gathered, at first hand, much new and curious material about the early days of the Hebrew press. There is much of interest in the artistic output of these early presses, and the book collector and the student of Jewish history alike will find much that is new concerning the Jews of Italy and their publications during the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries. The book is published by Julius H. Greenstone, Philadelphia.

The Patriot Publishing Company, formed to exploit and publish the famous Brady collection of Civil War photographs, and in which Herbert Myrick, of Good Housekeeping, is interested, are reported to have won their $50,000 libel suit with the Davenport (Ia.) Democrat and Leader. The suit concerned the validity of the 7000 photographs in question, the Patriot Publishing Company claiming them to be actual photographs taken on Civil War battlefields and so of unique historic value, the Democrat asserting editorially that the art of photography was not at that time sufficiently advanced to make such a collection possible.

Lemcke & Buechner have received the twentieth, the last, volume of the sixth revision of Meyer's great "Konversations Lexikon," which shares with its close rival Brockhaus, the premier place among German cyclopedias. This sixth edition has been seven years in the making, and the seventh is already begun. This process of constant revision has been of late years adopted with our American cyclopedias. The inimitable compactness, accuracy and thoroughness of the German cyclopedia are probably standard still, though the American cyclopedia has made immense strides toward perfection in the last decade.

The Yale University Press report that they have been obliged to put to press "The Hindrances to Good Citizenship," by Ambassador James Bryce, for a second time within three months. This volume is composed of the lectures delivered last summer before Yale University, on the "Responsibility of Citizenship" by the author of the "American Commonwealth." Charles Evans Hughes, Governor of the State of New York, found time to deliver the course succeeding Ambassador Bryce, and his book, entitled "Conditions of Progress in Democratic Government," will also appear from the Yale University Press very shortly.

J. B. Lippincott Company have in press for early publication a new novel by William Jasper Nicolls, "The Daughters of Suffolk," an historical romance of the middle 16th century. The Suffolk referred to is Henry Grey, 3d, Marquis of Dorset. He married Frances, daughter of Charles Brandon and Mary, sister of Henry VIII., and by her became father of Lady Jane Grey and of her sister—not so well known to the general reader—Lady Katherine Grey. The lives of these two young girls form the historical facts from which Mr. Nicolls has written his story. The book will be illustrated with twenty reproductions of rare old plates collected by the author.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS publish this month "The Mission and Ministration of Holy Spirit," by Dr. Arthur Cleveland Downer; "The Divine Minstrels," a narrative of the life of St. Francis of Assisi and his companions, translated from the French of Auguste Bailly by Ernest Barnes; and a new edition of Professor Driver's "Literature of the Old Testament." They also announce new volumes added to several series: "Revelation and Inspiration," by Professor James Orr, to the Studies in Theology; "The Story of the Opera," by E. Markham Lee, to the Music Story Series; and "Sir John Millais," by J. Eadie Reid, to the Makers of British Art.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY have just published Francis H. Wellman's "Day in Court, or, the Subtle Arts of Great Advocates," a fascinating study of the psychology of legal cross-examination. The same house publishes "The Religions of Eastern Asia," by Dr. Horace Grant Underwood; while the increasing interest in farming as a livelihood is evidenced by four books showing various ways of farming profitably announced for spring publication. "Practical Farming," by Dr. John McLennan, embodies in simple form the principles derived from the latest scientific investigations in agricultural methods. Of a similar nature, but a little more specialized, is L. H. Bailey's "Manual of Gardening." In D. L. Lyon's "How to Keep Bees for Profit," and C. S. Valentine's "How to Keep Hens for Profit," the authors have gathered their material from their own actual experience and they have included in their discussions only the essentials for success.

THE Putnams publish this month a list very largely devoted to history and biography. In the history there is an excellently illustrated book, "The Antietam and Its Bridges," by Helen Hays, which may surprise many people by showing that the little stream is notable for more than the great battle fought along it; two lectures by Professor Harneck, the eminent historian of the University of Berlin, "Monasticism; Its Ideals and History," and "The Confessions of St. Augustine" and "The Old Egyptian Faith," the latest addition to the Crown Theological Library, translated from the French of Edouard Naville by Colin Campbell. In biography there is F. A. Simpson's romantic "Rise of Louis Napoleon," a thrilling presentation of a most adventurous life; and Louis A. Coolidge's life of former Senator Orville H. Platt, of Connecticut, under the title "An Old Fashioned Senator," a deserved tribute to a man who, overshadowed perhaps in the popular clamor by his New York colleague, towered high above him as a shrewd, unselfish, constructive statesman.

BUSINESS NOTES.

DULUTH, MINN.—The Albertson Book and Stationery Company sold at auction January 17 uncollected book accounts amounting to over $1200.

NEW YORK CITY.—Maurice Wolfer, doing business at 304-10 E. 33d Street as the Union Publishing Co. and the Wolfer Press, has had a petition in bankruptcy filed against him. William J. TERMS OF ADVERTISING

Under the heading "Books Wanted" book-trade subscribers, under their own names, are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print of five nonpareil lines, exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be inclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, or those advertising anonymously, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents a line. All objectionable books will be excluded so far as they come under our notice.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No reduction for repeated matter.

All other small undisplayed advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no account must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their Communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

☞ In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash.]

☞ Write your wants plainly, and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly," does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay" booksellers should take the usual precautions, as to advertisers not known to them that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.

BRILLIANT MASTERPIECES OF COURT ROOM ORATORY

The Search of Years Fruitful at Last

CLASSICS OF THE BAR

By Senator Alvin V. Sellers

NOW READY

You hear Beach's burning words in the suit against Henry Ward Beecher for leading the plaintiff's wife astray, and you hear the eloquent Tracy in the minister's defense. You hear Delmas in the Thaw case picture Evelyn's life along the primrose path. You hear Prentiss in Kentucky's greatest murder trial, and Susan B. Anthony's dramatic response to the court that condemned her. You view the life-and-death trials of Croker, Tammany's chieftain, and O'Donnell, the Irish martyr. You hear Clarence Darrow and Senator Borah in Haywood's recent trial You hear Merrick in the trial of Surratt for the murder of Lincoln, and you stand for two hours with the mighty Voorhees as he invokes the unwritten law in behalf of an erring sister's brother who had killed the man that "plucked a flower from the garden of honor and flung it away in a little while, withered and dead." You hear Ingersoll, Seward, Lewis, Rayner, Brady and other masters of thought and language plead for the heart treasures of human life.

THE REAL TEMPLE OF ORATORY has at last been invaded and you revel with genius around an intellectual banquet-board and see in graphic pictures the loves, hopes and shattered romances of a world.

Book is strongly bound and illustrated. Frontispiece after Cope's famous painting, "The Plaintiff's Appeal at the First Trial by Jury."

THE NOVELS OF HAROLD BINDLOSS

have been steadily growing more popular since "Alton of Somasco," his first hit, "Winston of the Prairie," and others. "Lorimer of the Northwest," published last Spring, and "The Greater Power" at a net price, last Fall, were among his greatest successes. We now announce

THURSTON
